Hash Trash (Run 1202) - Scribe—Dale & David Jones

VENUE: Cove Bay, St. Lucy

DATE: 5th August 2006

HARES: Nick “Curb Crawler” & Dave R.

I was quite dubious at first when hashing was suggested, mainly due to the fact that I am on holiday and hashing involves running. Nevertheless we get underway and arrive at the hash location, and may I add what a location, a wonderful bay somewhere on the east coast.

I’ve never done a hash before so I have nothing to compare this ones quality with but I think everyone’s overall impression was brilliant. It started with a wonderful little hill climb (and fall in some cases) then descending back inland and across a few fields. Unfortunately there were no avant-garde ‘shifting’ trails, just a slightly wound up local with a goat worried that there were thirty or so hashers running round his back garden! Then after what seemed like a lifetime hunting for the back check, finally those two little words rang out. On On! A nice flat home stretch followed with a quite sneaky trial under a very low bridge, but no one bought it and round we went! Eventually we arrived back after a brilliant 1 hour 10 minute hash.

Then the lime followed with good amounts of slightly odd coloured water! But most drank it anyway. Then the beer flowed and the rain threatened to put a stop to it all but it passed and the evening went on! We then had to re-negotiate are way back across the field in the dark, hope no-one got lost and run over a cow.

Hash Trash (Run 1204) - Scribes— Patrick & Christopher Henry

Our names are Christopher and Patrick Henry, and for those of you who have been at the Hash long enough, you would remember us as the annoying little kids, especially Patrick, who went crazy stomping on the Shit Shirt every Saturday. Patrick even got it a few times. We've never actually read a Hash Trash before so we have no idea what to write. Coming back to the hash after 6 years, although we were back three years ago for a couple of Hashes, we expected more to change. There are some new faces and some old faces but it's still a drinking club with a running problem. No offence to whoever set the run but we've got to say that it wasn't one of the most scenic runs we've done although we do enjoy muddy cane fields.

However we noticed one thing that was quite a bit different from our last Hash experience- the down-downs. Overlooking the fact that in some cases people were forced to drink about half a cup of rum (which took quite the toll on some of the accused), many heinous crimes were completely overlooked in the judging process. First of all, "Taxi Ted" missed the turn for the Hash and ended up getting his ZM stuck on a cane road, having to leave it there for the course of the entire run. Such an act is surely worthy of the Suzuki award if such a thing still exists. But it gets worse. In the middle of the run, we heard the ring of a cell phone, a sound that we did not expect to hear in the middle of a Hash! We turned around to find the source of the noise. It was a lady, dressed in a pink spandex outfit, who pulled a pink RAZR out and answered it. Bringing a cell phone, let alone a pink Hash, is bad enough, but of her pocket RAZR, on the answer it in the middle of to actually an- the run is cer- tainly a heinous crime, one that would be punished mercilessly in the old days of the Hash. All in all though, it was a great run, and we'd like to thank the Hares "Panama" Iain and Mike
"Baron Tongus" for setting it.

...you would remember us as the annoying little kids...

P.S. Condolences to Bill "Che Guevara" Henry, who, for the first time in Hash history, finished the run behind both of his sons.
